

. . . we helped our brother and sister and through each other's involvement developed all into one. . . Relating to one another, realizing each of us is important, hoping for fairness to all. Those were the ingredients which were mixed in the 1974-5 activities program of the school. Students had many ways of expressing their talents. We found through the extracurricular program that others are very important. We found that everyone here touches our lives. . . We found that each of us can make life easier for all.
