

THE Real world..it's not just a show on MTV, but what students had to look forward to after they graduated from high school. With making their own decisions and not depending on their parents, students faced many challenges and choices for "preparation for the future."

Many students prepared themselves by concentrating in high school and planned on going to college to further their education.

Junior Norman Dexter commented, "I plan on going to Albany State College and majoring in commercial arts."

Not knowing exactly what he'll major in, Freshman Guy Maxilom stated, "I plan on getting a good paying job."

But did the school environment offer everything students needed to prepare themselves? Senior

Henry Romero replied, with a stern look on his face. "I'm not going to use poetry, half of the math skills, and some sciences."

Agreeing, Senior Devin Gore said, "I'm never going to need History."

Some said they would feel scared after graduation but others were excited to be free from parental constraints. Sophomore Jodie Houghton stated, "I feel excited because I am going to get my life together."

On the other hand, Sophomore Ken Nix said, "I'm worried because I don't know what is going to happen in the future."

Whether worried or excited, Barons couldn't stop the future from coming, so they tried to prepare for all the setbacks and advances.

SO... Got any plans?
