This year's Baron wrestling team was full of young energetic athletes. Anyone in search of a truly physical sport should keep wrestling in mind.

Wrestling is a sport of contact and skill whose object is to pin one's opponent down on his or her shoulders for three seconds. The winner goes home victorious and the loser just goes home.

This year was the first time to go to Alconbury, England. They had a new coach, Mr. Lowery, and got help from community volunteers.

This year there was a girl's league, so BHS's Jessica Watkins had a chance to wrestle other girls instead of always wrestling guys.

Ryan Mirabal gets put in an awkward position by Mike Gilbert.

Nick Miletic shows eighth grader Matt Holas who's the boss.

Managers Lisa Holmstrom and Katie Reitman mop the floors squeaky clean.

Bottom: The wrestling team shows us their flexibility. Can you say OUCH?!
